VP Industries group, with headquarters in Lem, Denmark, is a partner to leading industrial companies. Since the 1950's, the core business area for VP industries has been the marine sector, providing charge air coolers for primarily diesel engines.

VP industries, under its name from that time Vestas aircoil, manufactured the worlds very first charge air cooler together with Burmeister & Wain in Copenhagen. Since that time, the product portfolio has grown drastically encompassing other market areas, keeping VP industries at the technological forefront of product development.

Today VP industries is a modern manufacturing company, aiding its clients with many R&D projects and performing both OEM/series production tasks as well as short term bespoke units. With multiple production locations in Europe and Asia and a global sales & service network, VP industries is a preferred partner of leading industrial companies globally.
